

GOOD WILL

That is something money cannot buy—something that must be earned by merit, as we realize that our patron's good will is a surplus that enhances the value of our business, we are trying hard to earn it every day. Earn it by the quality of merchandise—the service we render—the fine and wide assortments at the lowest prices possible, to quote and maintain a standard and quality that will merit and preserve your good will.

We respectfully beg to call the attention of our patrons to the fact that a dollar cannot be obtained for less than one hundred cents and beware of anyone who offers you something that is worth a dollar for fifty—seventy five or even ninety nine cents; as invariably you will get less than your money's worth.

We are only human though—and to "err is human." Should we do anything that may prompt you to draw out any of your good will balance from our reserve, you will find us ready and very anxious to make satisfactory adjustment; and would like to be accorded the privilege of doing so.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Sanders at Home.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Sanders returned to the city on Friday from Charleston, making the trip through the country in their car. Dr. Sanders was back in his office yesterday, and will resume at once his dental practice. For the past eight months Dr. Sanders has been taking a special course at the South Carolina Medical college, and in the hospital there.

His many friends and patients will be delighted to hear of his return.

Mrs. Horton Entertains.

Mrs. L. S. Horton, one of Anderson's most attractive young hostesses entertained a few friends at a delightful little card party on Friday afternoon at her pretty home on Woodrow Circle.

It was the second of a series being given by Mrs. Horton, and was ably assisted by her husband. Among the guests were Mrs. T. L. Cely and Miss Bertha Cashion.

The guest for the afternoon were: Mrs. E. W. Taylor, Mrs. C. P. Green, Mrs. H. H. Harris, Mrs. Frank Hall, Mrs. J. J. Baldwin, Mrs. K. P. Smith, Mrs. Frank Reed, Mrs. T. S. Crayton, Mrs. A. P. Johnstone, Mrs. W. S. Brook, Mrs. Nardin Webb, Mrs. W. R. Wones.

Dixie Chapter U. D. C. Meets.

The Dixie Chapter U. D. C., held their last meeting until after the summer months on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Carrie McCully and Mrs. C. McC. Patrick. This being the annual meeting the officers made reports for the work of the year; these reports showing excellent work done by this chapter, so favorable were they that the members thought it advisable to elect the present officers as a whole for the coming year, and they will remain the same.

Mrs. J. H. Anderson, president; Miss Nellie Cochran, first vice president; Mrs. O. D. Anderson, second vice president; Miss Frances Riley, secretary; Miss Nellie Barton, treasurer; Mrs. Grace G. Cochran, historian; Mrs. A. P. Johnstone, gleaner; Mrs. Rosa McCully, chairman of Cross committee; Mrs. Lottie Ester, registrar. It was decided to entertain the veterans in October as a more suitable time than in June. Miss Nellie Cochran gave a splendid sketch of the Indians of South Carolina, after which Miss Frances Riley told of a visit that she had made to the reservation, which is near Rock Hill describing some of the customs of this now almost extinct tribe—the Catawbas. This brought out a general discussion which was very interesting. The historian, Mrs. Grace G. Cochran, who is so well versed in historical lore, and knows so well how to impart it, read a "Tribute to Lee" which was written with so much force that the hearers were thrilled with patriotism. Miss Marie Williams, a visitor from Tennessee, sang two lovely songs, the first being her own composition "Two Roses," which breathed of the south and flowers two thoughts always associated. Another sweet singer and adopted daughter from the north, Mrs. Herbert Harris sang very delightfully with Mrs. Charles Spearman as accompanist, thus closing a most delightful program. Expressions of regret were heard on all sides that this was the last meeting until September.

Lander Club Meeting.

Planning that the last meeting of the club before disbanding for the summer, should be a real picnic one, the members on Friday afternoon, June 2nd, with their little boxes or baskets of lunch motored out to the beautiful shady home or yard of Mrs. Lizzie Garlington on River Heights, and there had a most enjoyable afternoon.

The president had a few minutes of business and appointed committees for the fall work; then Mrs. C. M. Buchanan read Van Dyke's beautiful poem, "God of the Open Air," which was so appropriate for their meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Anderson had been requested to bring and read to these home members that splendid essay, "Our Ideals," which she had written, and read at the Alumnae association last Monday at Lander, college commencement, Greenwood. This was very fine and fully appreciated by every one present.

Miss Maggie Garlington knowing that a little assistance now and then is relished by the wisest of men presented "A Floral Love Tale," having the members fill in with names of flowers—such funny names or guesses were given that many and often were there hearty laughs and applause.

If prizes had been offered the booty would have fallen to Mrs. L. S. Sanders of Mrs. V. E. Lash at the "Forget-me-not" till every place.

All were delighted to have Mrs. E. C. Ballentine and Mrs. Dan Brown become members.

Misses Janis and Annie Garlington had made ice tea and spread the lunch on tables in the side yard. At five all were served with tea Mrs. J. D. Edwards proposed a toast and all drank to the new grandmother of the club, Mrs. James R. Anderson. Mrs. George Prince being the only grandmother the club has had for two years.

The lunch! It is useless to tell of it or how very much it was enjoyed, but it was with great reluctance all had to say goodbye until September.

Next, Annie Barton, Glenn Laster, Ray Smith, and Willie Green attended the dance at Clemson on Friday night.

Young Anderson Woman, By Adoption, Contributes Story to Southern School News

"Musical Education in the Schools," is the title of a highly interesting article by Miss Elizabeth Breazeale, who has been teaching during the past session near Honea Path, and who is spending the summer in Anderson. Miss Breazeale is, by adoption, an Anderson girl. The article referred to was given prominent space in the Southern School News, published in Columbia. In text it is original, and is indicative of careful thought and study. The article is given here in full as follows:

MUSICAL EDUCATION IN SCHOOLS
(By Elizabeth Breazeale.)

The wave of enthusiasm for community and extension work which is sweeping over the entire South has never been equalled for pure altruism, and democratic sympathy by any movement in the world's history.

In this as in all other issues, however, we are in grave danger of allowing ourselves to become so eager and absorbed in perfecting the means that we will lose sight of the end towards which we are striving. To be specific, it is not enough that the boy become a successful farmer, the girl a good cook; yet too often the result of our efforts to leave, with those whom we are trying to help the idea that health, prosperity and physical comfort possess in themselves absolute value. It is not enough to insist on the efficiency and material progress of the individual. The human animal is possessed of a heart and unless the education of the heart proceed hand in hand with that of the other faculties the outcome cannot but be disastrous sooner or later.

Nothing offers a more vital or more perplexing problem than this, and its solution depends on the teacher, particularly the teacher in the rural community. The writer's experience in trying to find a solution may offer suggestions to others who are working along similar lines. In our work as principal of a rural graded school in the upper part of South Carolina we became daily more and more appalled by the drabness, the sordidness, the meagre monotony of the existence of the average family. If only those long winter evenings of enforced monotony could be used to advantage! But there seemed to be no help. To be sure, there were occasional school entertainments, but few of the older ones were ever present. Many could not come because of ill health, babies, home duties, or as was often the case, deficiency in wardrobe. There was, of course, the school library. But what interest could most of the books have to the fathers and mothers with such a limited knowledge of reading, and still more limited range of experience?

Beside the interests and pleasure of the older ones there was to be considered the amusement of the younger generation which demanded entertainment at any price. The crying need was for some form of refining enjoyment which would reach all and have its appeal to all. While giving the matter serious thought the idea of a circulating Victrola presented itself. Why not? As soon as possible an entertainment was given at which was raised sufficient money to purchase a small Victrola, and a modest collection of records. The effect was wonderful. Each family could hardly wait its turn to claim the Victrola, and while the Victrola was at the house it was the occasion for friends and relatives, far and near, to come and spend the evening. The enjoyment and appreciation shown were remarkable. Few, if any, had ever before heard real music, yet many of the favorite selections were from an artistic and musical standpoint the best.

Through this circulating instrument hopes are being uttered, the best in the heart is being brought out as never could be done by any other method in a thousand years. The people are awakening at last to a vision, and without vision the people perish.

Our experience has convinced us that a school community should be without a Victrola, or other similar instrument. Many schools in large cities have found it indispensable for games, folk dancing, marching and for the appropriate celebration of school holidays. Too a number of selections have been used with great success in correlation with the regular studies, particularly geography and history.

In this connection, we should like to present a suggestion, as far as our knowledge extends, entirely unique. Its successful operation will depend on the example for schools in other sections. Let there be in each county a teachers' musical organization with a record exchange. This exchange would make it possible for every school owning a Victrola to become acquainted with a great variety of selections without necessitating a large expenditure for records. Just stop to think what such an organization would accomplish. Certainly the results would be more far-reaching and lasting.

CHERAW MAN WINS 57-YEARS STRUGGLE

W. W. SPENCER'S LONG SUFFERING IS FINALLY ENDED BY NEW FRIEND

TELLS WHOLE STORY

Troubles Became Worse Last Fall and He Began to Fear, But Tanlac Made Him Happy

After waging a seemingly hopeless fight for health from the time he graduated in 1858 at South Carolina College now the University of South Carolina at Columbia, until recently, W. W. Spencer a well known and highly respected citizen of Cheraw, S. C., tells in an open letter how Tanlac, the master medicine, quickly brought him "wonderful relief."

Mr. Spencer graphically describes his condition and explains how Tanlac made him almost a new man, in the following letters:

Cheraw, S. C.
"Dear Sir: I enclose you a dollar to pay for the extra bottle of Tanlac tonic. I paid for one and you sent two. I celebrated my eightieth birthday last Saturday. I have been handicapped all my life by weak digestion, and nervousness but my prudence and abstemious living have arrived at a good old age. But I felt that my lamp of life was burning out rapidly; my digestion was poor, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing, when I hit upon your tonic.

"Since then I have improved wonderfully. I can now eat almost anything with impunity, can even eat vegetables at supper and get a good night's sleep. I feel at this writing that I have a new lease on life! Thanks to the best medicine I ever took, Tanlac.

"Your Tanlac has been a God-send to me.
"Hoping you a long and happy life. I sign myself,
Yours truly,
W. W. SPENCER."

(Signed) W. W. SPENCER.
Mr. Spencer was asked for permission to publish his letter, and he replied as follows:

Cheraw, S. C.
"Mr. T. W. Gayton, Columbia, S. C.
"Dear Sir: In complying with your request I will state to you some facts and leave it to you to make out a decent certificate.

"I graduated at Columbia in 1857 with my health a perfect wreck. I was told by my doctors that I had nervous prostration, ulcerated stomach and chronic gastritis. I could not keep water on my stomach long enough for it to get, but my prudence in diet and regular habits. I lived along but never regained my youthful vigor.

"Early in the fall I felt my health falling. I became constipated, and had sleepless nights with most fantastic dreams, no appetite and poor digestion. Then I saw your ad. in The State. When the first bottle was gone I began to take notice that something was going on. I have fully improved—almost rejuvenated. I sleep well; appetite and digestion good, and even get hungry, which I seldom ever felt before, and I am always glad when meal time comes. My liver, my stomach, and my kidneys now act in perfect harmony.

"I do not crave publicity, but if you think my experience with Tanlac will be of any aid to suffering humanity, I am very willing that you make the best use of it you can.
"Hoping you success, and with highest regards, I am
Your respectfully,
Signed, W. W. SPENCER.

NECKTIE WINDOW A NOVEL FEATURE

Smith, Garrett and Barton Have Creditable Display

"Wash" is certainly the most prominent part of a window display of wash ties arranged by the Smith, Garrett and Barton Co. of this city. In the window they have a very pretty array of ties, all on a clothes line extending the width of the window. Under this they have arranged ties with a negro doll, busily engaged in washing the ties. Real water is in the tub and some few ties are in the water, showing the genuineness of the guarantee that they can be washed. The window is attractive, well dressed and the idea clearly expressed. It reflects credit to the man who designed it.

than we can have any conception of at present.
With the democracy of music will come light, the light of neither land nor sea. This dawn of awakened aspirations and longings for the best will break to flood the hearts of the people sooner or later. It will come with us teachers when it shall come.
